and the Histadrut, after an agreement had seemed likely. The breaking point was Finance Minister Sapir's condition that the Histadrut would promise that there would be no chain reaction effects on the 150,000 civil servants and local government officials. The Histadut was not willing to give such a commit-

In the final phase of the negotia-tions it emerged that Mr. Sapir had received a letter from Shlomo Zhitelny, of the Histadrut Trade Union Department, stating that civil servants and local government officials reserved the right to amend their recently signed collective agreement should the Government grant any increases to engineers or other grad-uates employed in government and Thereby, the spokesmen of the engineers and technicians charged, they had linked all government and public officials to the engineers in addition to the other salaried professionals. They noted that the civil servants were awarded a 31 per cent wage increase, and thus they had no room for extra claims if the engineers got another 34 1, per cent including an extra C.o.L. allowance payment.

They said the Finance Minister had at first claimed that their demands would involve a 70 per cent increase, while the engineers said it was half that figure. After a compromise the actual demands came to an extra 24.5 per cent without C.o.L. allowance. They reported that Mr. Sapir had offered an extra eight per cent in upgrading, 10 per cent on account of overtime, one per cent for refresher courses, one per cent for technical literature, four per cent for "wage creep" over two years and one and a half per cent for fringe benefits.

The engineers took his offer on condition that the 10 per cent extra overtime pay would be added to the reformed wage scale — expanding the grades by 18 per cent. Then Mr. Sapir changed his mind, claim-ing it would cause a chain reaction use of the straitjacket of the unified wage scale for public offi-

The union secretaries noted that their wage scale was set in 1958 and time had caused it to be distorted, preventing any real chal-lenge for promotion. Thus, skilled workers, by adding overtime and incentive payments to their wages, earned more in net salary than engineers in the same factories. The unions' proposed wage scales will provide for a top gross wage of IL3,000, basic pay at IL2,200. The starting grade wage will be IL650 with gross pay at IL1,000. According to a Treasury the real difference between Mr. Sapir and the Histadrut lay in the manner of distributing that part of the wage rise (18 per cent) which would turn up in the workers' paychecks.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, asked at Lod Airport to comment on the negotiations before leaving for a European speaking tour, said he had stopped handling the en-gineers' claims before the wage-table stage. "I asked the engineers to draw up a wage table, and I'll be ready to agree to it provided the union : (the Histadrut's) does too.

The agreement can only be signed if the union agrees or does not object," he said.

On labour relations in general, The Cabinet has decided to sue laxation. He declared that it was realize that getting increments from Development Minister Haim Gvati their employers has to hurt their

Georgians camp in Jerusalem police station

A brother and sister who recently immigrated from Georgia were released on IL500 ball yesterday by a Jerusalem magistrate after police said they assaulted constables who had come to evict them from the office of the Minister of Absorption.

The suspects, Shimon Bunuashvill, 39, and Lara Kekozashvili, 37, had refused to leave the Minister's office because they said they had nowhere to live.

The brother has been studying at a Netanya ulpan for the past three months. The sister is married and has four children - twins aged 30 months, a five-year-old girl and a year. son of eight. Both spent the night in the Jerusalem police station.

They claimed the Ministry sent them to look at an apartment in Ashkelon. When they got there, they were told the apartment would not be ready for another six months — so they went directly to the Minister's office to demand immediate housing.

The brother and sister, who will be tried on Sunday, told "Itim" they plan to stay in the police station since they have no place to go.

Arabs only talking big, says Cairo editor

A leading Egyptian newspaper editor said yesterday that the Arab nation should either brace itself for an assauft on Israel or "get lost in the recess of oblivion."

Expressing Cairo's disappoint-ment with Tuesday's break-up of the conference of 18 Arab Chiefs of Staff who were summoned to Cairo to discuss a combined Arab military plan against Israel, Mous-sa Sabry of "Al-Akhbar" mass-circulation newspaper charged that the Arabs were doing nothing about the confrontation with Israel except for talking big. He labelled the frequent pan-Argh meetings in Cairo as "empty" of content.

Meanwhile, the Arab League yes terday denied that the Arab Chiefs of Staff intended to resume their meeting which broke up after the first session on Tuesday night. A spokesman for the League, which sponsored the parley, said some par-ticipants have already left Cairo

A report on the resumption of the conference was carried by Cairo's newspaper which said "Al-Ahram" that the Arab Chiefs of Staff were due to reconvene after conferring with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on Wednesday.

In Damascus, Syrian President Hafez Assad called upon the Arabs to unite and mobilize all their resources in preparation for a confrontation with Israel He said that Israel's "expansionist moves were the greatest danger the Arabs were facing, whereas the Arabs should unite their ranks to face such a threat.

Assad was speaking at the Damascus University at a gathering marking Peasants Day.

Pro-Arab Swedes break up parley COPENHAGEN (INA). — A recent meeting organized by the Stockholm Jewish community was broken up by a group of 60 young Swedes who chanted "free the terrorists" and "down with occupation."

Those attending the meeting, held to discuss the Middle East situation, dispersed. The demonstrators then proceeded to vote a resolution branding Israel as "an aggressor and occupier," and calling upon it to adopt a new policy in the Middle East.

'Trial by newspaper?' Israel press rapped for spy ring reporting

Earlier in the week, the Times" correspondent in Jerusalem. Eric Marsden, wrote in his report that: "The emotional sphere has been inflamed by publicity given to the alle-activities of Jewish suspects. The reports are of the kind that normally follow conviction and sentence in British

The "Guardian's" correspondent, Eric Silver, wrote: "The sub judice rules are much less stringent here than they are in Britain, and the Israeli press is brimming with hearsay stories about the four Jews among those arrested."

Misgivings are beginning to surface in Israel about the risks of "trial by newspaper," he said, adding that "asso pointed, if not actually tarred with guilt," in referring to the prominence given to the fact that Adiv had brought Daniel yan's name mentioned, even though he was but one of the plotters' allegedly intended vic-Cohn-Bendit to visit Gan Shmuel

"Justice can hardly be served by reports that one named accused went to Damascus and Cal-"Jewish Observer" notes that ro and divelged highly classified the case is particularly wounding military information," Silver to Israeli pride, but that "Israel wrote on Wednesday.

THE PUBLIC COUNCIL FOR RUSSIAN JEWRY December 15, 1970 — December 15, 1972 Two years since the Leningrad Trials

Two years have passed since the first trial in which stalwarts of the fight for emigration from the U.S.S.R. to Israel were placed in the dock. This trial, which was instigated as part of the Soviet authorities' attempt to terrorize the movement of Jewish awakening in the U.S.S.R., marked a decisive stage in the consolidation of this movement. We appeal to the Soviet authorities to free those sentenced in this and subsequent trials — their only crime was their desire to be free in their homeland.

The State of Israel and the Jewish People in the Diaspora will not slacken their efforts; we shall raise our voices at every opportunity, from every platform, to demand the release of our brethren.

JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS OF THE WORLD: we are very appreciative of every demonstration and every expression of identification with the Prisoners for Zion. While our brothren suffer in concentration camps in the U.S.S.R., we are all under an obligation to increase our activities on their behalf. To the Prisoners for Zion and their relatives, we say: The Jewish People is proud of your fortitude in this difficult role that it has fallen on you to play.

Our most earnest hope is to witness the joy of your return to the homeland, THE BOARD OF THE COUNCIL

AMERICA'S AGONY OVER VIETNAM

By SAM LIPSKI Jerusalem Post Correspondent

WASHINGTON. - While Henry Klasinger was flying to Paris this week for what was hoped to be the last round of cease-fire talks with the North Vietnamese, the NBC television network was showing the film, "The Green Berets," starring John Wayne. I had never seen it before and watched in growing disbelief as this swful film made its travesty of art, patriotism, history and even of some elementary laws about propagands.

How maddeningly appropriate. The long war grinds to an inconclusive, anti-climatic, sput-tering arrangement (for it is surely not "peace" which is being achieved in Paris) and, as if to underline its oddness in American experience, the only Hollywood movie that anyone can remember about the war is a mindless Western in jungle green.

The Green Berets, Hollywood style and in the fiesh as they paid homage at John Ken-nedy's tomb in Arlington's war cemetery one Sunday morning, provide one of many curios that flash across the recollection when a reporter thinks back on the long road towards a cease-fire agreement, however, fragile.

Washington's involvement with the Indo-China war, of course, goes back to the days of President Eisenhower —some would say to the Truman Administration. But for me the war, as seen from the banks of the Potomac began when I arrived here in March, 1969. It was the day of Eisenhower's funeral

As the taxi-driver took me the long way around to my hotel to avoid the crowds he kept on repeating, "Great shame about Ike. Yes, sir. Never would have let us get into this Vietnam mess. Never. No, sir . Got us out of Korea

One way or another since that first day I have watched the Vietnam "mese" and its consequences hovering over political Washing-ton, now descending to envelop the town in a fog of divisive rhetoric and sometimes violence, now lifting to reveal the confusion and trauma it has caused amongst the nation's leadership. Some extracts, then, from one reporter's notebooks: not about strategy, politics, or diplomacy, but about some people.

A few memories of the public history are particularly vivid: Henry Kissinger telling a small group of anti-war demonstrators in mid-1969 that if the war was still going 12 months later they could come back and tear down the White House fence.

The unflappable Rusk

Or the unflappable Dean Rusk in 1970 giving his first television interview after leaving the Department of State and thinking care-fully when asked if there were any mistakes that he would acknowledge in handling Viet-nam over the 1961-1968 period. Well, there probably was one miscalculation, said Rusk: he had underestimated the determination of Hanoi to persist with its efforts to conquer

There was that early summer morning in 1970 when a restless Richard Nixon woke his Cuban valet in the middle of the night and, accompanied by some sleepy secret servicemen, drove down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Lin-Nixon had come at a time when there was turnoll on the campuses in the wake of the decision to invade Cambodia. The protests turned into something more serious and threatening when the shooting of four students at Kent State University brought thousands of young demonstrators to Washington. At dawn, the few students who were asleep on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial were startled to find their "arch-villain" talking to them for an hour. But when asked what had been discussed, it turned out to be football, the advantages of travelling abroad, and the hope that they would have a good time while they that they would have a good time while they were in Weshington

Many took the President's advice and the protests of some 100,000 anti-war marchers were remembered more for the skinny-dipping that went on in the Pool of Reflection than for any serious political impact. Just two years later the same President mined the harbours of North Vietnam and escalated massive bombing. There were 27 demonstrators outside the White House the next day.

I remember sitting transfixed as John Kerry, the spokesman for the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, went before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in April 1971 to speak about the horrors of war. It was Shakespearian drama. But then the next day I found out that Richard Goodwin, a Kennedy speech-writer had written it all for Kerry, and those oratorical emotions were slightly second-hand.

The My Lai massacre trial of William Calley, like so much of contemporary American life, confirmed hostile prejudices about the U.S. or surprised sympathetic observers once more with the essential openness and freedom of the system. If you believed that Americans were a genocidal people led by war-crazed leaders the fact that most of them were outraged by the verdict of guilty (and that Nixon responded very quickly to that outcry) confirmed your darkest fears. But perhaps you wondered what other country would go out of its way to hold such a trial in the middle of a war and where else a military prosecutor with the rank of captain would write to his commander in chief (the President) to tell him how much he resented his political interference with justice. I know I certainly wondered about it.

Some reactions from private Washington over these last four years remain equally memorable. I recall talking to a teacher's aide at my daughter's kindergarten. "Flip" is 26, born in South Carolina, black, a former U.S. Marine, and three times wounded in South Vietnam. He still carries shrapnel in his back. Decorated for rescuing six of his fellow marines under heavy fire, and separated from his wife who left him while he was at war, he has little to feel grateful about. Except, of course, that he survived

'Dying for the politicians'

He is one of the two and a half million Americans, volunteers and draftees, who served in Vietnam. He resented the idea of Americans going into a war without using all of America's power against the enemy. He did not believe the government had done enough for returning veterans in jobs and medical care. He thought soldiers dying for the politicians was the story of the war.

And yet he was proud of his military ser-vice and pleased that race had not effected relationships between black and white Americans in the Marines to the degree it had in other services. The anti-Vietnam veterans did not speak for him, he said, and he could not accept the idea that the U.S. should unlisterally pull out after so many dead. "Man, I can't see us admitting we blew it and let all those guys get killed. It had to mean something."

To the State Department official at dinner one night it meant that Americans had found out they could be capable of evil. "We've been knocked off the moral pedestal. Maybe we should never have put ourselves up there. But

The official was 35, a Yale graduate and he had worked in Vietnam-related fields all through the Administration of Lyndon Johnson. In 1965 he had accepted the domino theory. "I don't want to hide behind sophisticated versions of it. I believed there was a real threat in Asia. I believed that the threat was real at the time and we were right to go into Indo-China. I still do. The mistake was how we went in and what we believed we could accomplish,"

But he acknowledged that among his friends outside the State Department he is alone in this view, 'My life has been changed as a result of Vietnam, Nothing compared to what it has meant for someone in Vietnam, heaven's sake. But all my close friends beca involved in the anti-war movement. I lost th one by one. To them it was not just a mist but a great moral crime, a helnous thing t made them guilty and ashamed of being Au icans.

But what had gone wrong? If journali independent observers, and officials within Administration knew there were mistakes, \ didn't the Presidents and their advisers? thing that something strange happened dur Johnson's time. He could never bring him to believe that those little bastards in bl pyjamas could hold out against Ameri bombers. Well, he knew, but he lied to himse-

This brought up the question of the Pergon Papers, and the official was scattabout the American press. "Look, the Figure 1 tagon Papers did not really reveal all 1 w 3 5 many secrets. There were more than a journalists in Washington who knew n going on. These guys went skiing \

Expiating their guilt

'The Washington ones - the Salgon-b: press were a bit different — just but most of the consensus line. Or else didn't know it was really important to the Tet offensive blew up in our faces they suddenly realized. Wait a minute, they said We could lose this one. the papers came out all the noise mostly a case of trying to explate the at not having done their job."

Was it wonth it? I remember asking question of Dean Acheson when I first c to Washington in 1969. He had refused speak for the record at the time but ag to a background chat in the office he n tained at Covington and Burling, one of capital's elite law firms. The late Ach was, as others have noted, a natural tocrat. He thought the Vietnam war a d trous mistake. I recall his answer to question historians will have to ponder

"No, I don't believe it was worth it. rible things have happened in this cour And I think our international position been weakcucd." That was in 1969. then the American commitment has indicted for creating inflation, destroying morale of the U.S. Army, spreading haddiction, undermining authority and American institutions in the eyes of a v generation of Americans, destroying country's faith in itself, and disrupting universities. This is not to begin to met . what the cost has been to the Vietnar

That is quite a bill of indictment. It be for the historians to sort out just Vietnam can be blamed for, what * have bappened anyway, what, if any, ber as well as damages were incurred America and Asia, For now there is a sense of relief in Washington, still some scoptical as to whether this is really the of the affair, but relief nevertheless.

TEL AVIV. - The Israel Rugby Football Union's new selection committee will be taking a close look at the country's top players tomorrow, when the "Probables" and "Possibles" meet in Haifa in preparation for next month's tour here of a British Army rugby team.

The trial, at Neve Sha'anan, will

The selectors, who started their work in Ramat Gan at last Seturday's first trial there, are former Rumanian rugby international Eli-ezer Cotter, and Effic Been and Leo Camron, who both played in the top-class game in their native South

The three - who will name their team for the "Test" against the visitors following a final trial in Jerusalem next weekend -- told The Jerusalem Post yesterday that their major problem concerns the

ANEN DINEISON! IN MOTORING

1 st. NEW DIMENSION - ENGINE

Overhead, belt driven camshaft — means high cruising speeds, safe overtaking, smoother operation, lower noise level and less wear.

The Audi 80's engine is a completely new design based on the successful Audi 100 engine. This new car needs regular maintenance & oil change every 15,000 Km ONLY (unlike all other makes that need maintenance every 10,000 Km) This design is another step toward maintenance — free operation.

2 nd. NEW DIMENSION - DESIGN

Compact exterior, roomy interior.

The new Audi 80 is ideally suited for city driving as well as for long distance driving. Its turning circle is only 10.3 m.

The courage to bring out a compact car was rewarded with added spaciousness in the passenger compartment, thanks to an ingenious design. Reclining front seats are standard for all models. The large 450 litre boot and the multitude of interior luxury features complete this new dimension in design and comfort.

3 rd. NEW DIMENSION - SAFETY

New diagonally connected twin circuit braking system, floating disc brakes standard on the front wheels, new stabilizing steering system, collapsible steering column, coil spring suspension front & rear, a "safety cell" passenger compartment and radial ply tires on all 4 wheels constitute a completely new dimension in motoring safety.

All models are available with 2 or 4 doors. Delivery from end of November 1972. AUDI 80 A NEW, SURPRISING DIMENSION IN CAR PRICES: STARTING AT IL 26,50

Sadat adopts warlike posture; Hussein plans development

TWO ARAB STRATEGIES

Bank

THE Israel-Arab conflict appears to be far from explosive, despite the warnings of some outside observers. The Arab governments are busy trying to neutralize the Palestinian sabotage movement. The terrorists, in turn, are arguing amongst themselves whether to go along with the cautious policy of the Arab governments or to keep the conflict hot and drag them into armed confrontation with

The immediate future may well depend on the mood of President Sadat. Unpredictable as he is, he seems unlikely to trigger an all-out confrontation now Judging from the way he has behaved during his two-year rule, Sadat seems to be trying to create for himself the image of a semi-god and he could not afford to lose a battle.

Sadat had expected the Soviet Union to help him achieve per-sonal glory through either war or peace, by the end of last year. When this failed and the Russians were expelled from Egypt, Sadat appeared to be-lieve that the West would help him make his dreams come true. The U.S. was prepared to aid Egypt in reopening the Suez Canal but only as a contribution towards peace.

Pan-Arab force

When he realized the differences between his outlook and that of the West, Sadat turned to rallying a pan-Arab force be-hind Egypt's call for military action against Israel.

The impossibility of this was emphasized by last Tuesday's conference of Arab Chiefs of Staff in Cairo. This ended suddenly after one brief ses-sion, prompting Sadat to call on the Arab countries to build up a military industry so that when they arrive at a joint strategy, the problem of dependence on foreign sources for strategic arms would be solved Egypt apparently hopes to obtain know-how from both East and West in building heavy weaponry, and is also reported to be aiming to strengthen its air power by pro ducing planes in cooperation with India.

Sadat realizes that this strategy needs a number of years to accomplish. In the meantime, he expects to keep the Israel-Arab conflict alive, without risking his country's military preparations. This policy was challenged this week in the Egyptian parilament, sparking off an unprece-dented outburst of anti-Government criticism. The legislators were expressing their nation's dissatisfaction over the way Sadat's policy was affecting the home front.

In face of the internal and external opposition, the question remains whether Sadat would stick to his long-range military strategy or switch to a shortrange one, within the framework of his federation with Syria and Libya. Either way, his regime will be in danger.

Hussein's confidence

Unlike Sadat, Jordan's King Hussein appears to be more confident than ever on the home front. He no longer regards the confrontation with Israel as an asset needed to maintain his rule. He still is in serious conflict with Israel, in particular over the question of Jerusalem. But, in contrast to Sadat, Hussein has been stressing a stra-tegy of peace, rather than of

'Hussein's spectacular plans for developing the East Bank have sparked off the question whether the King has resigned himself to the five-year-old status quo. His associates strongly deny this, arguing that the King wants to restore the sympathy and affillation of the Palestinians by strengthening the political and economic situation on the East Bank. The West Bankers always resented that the Transjordanian side of his kingdom was dependent on their region: On the question of Jordan's view of the future link with the West Bank, an observer in Amman said that there were four schools of thought. Two of the schools are dominated by Palestinians. The disciples of one of these consider themselves as having become throughout the past two decades an integral part of the Jordanian community. They advocate a reunion between the East and the West Banks under the leadership of King Hussein through whom they feel projected against the extremist Palestinians. This school includes intellectual and commercial circles and embraces also the bulk of the 1967 war refugees, whose number is estimated over 200,000 persons. They believe a political settlement between Jordan and Israel is possible. They are influential but seem to be in the minority compared with the other Palestinian school, which embraces' professional circles and some 600,000 1948 refugees. They tend to link their future with the West Bank population, with whom they would like to establish a

The main object at this stage appeared to be resettling over 100,000 persons, about half of whom are refugees, in some per-manent 15 villages in the Jordan Valley. The first stage, cost-ing over $60m., is being financed mainly by the U.S. Oil-rich Arab countries are also helping, espe-cially Kuwait, which recently contributed $15m, to Jordan's $35m. Jordan's concentration on the development of the East Bank does not necessarily mean that King Hussein is abandoning his claim to the West Bank or in particular over East Jerusalem and its holy places. He does not want his Hashemite dynasty to go down in history as having lost Jerusalem, after losing Mecca and Medina to the Wahabis of Saudi Arabia half a century ago.

'CURING' KUPAT HOLIM

By MACABEE DEAN Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. - Strikes have become both a "national sport" and a "national tragedy," Mr. Asher Yackin, newly appointed Director-General of Kupat Holim, yesterday told The Jerusalem st. "And the strikes must be .. d with a bit of common sense, no. with panic. If you don't give in to the strikers, and if they know you won't give in, they will go back to work."

(Mr. Yadlin's appointment as Director-General has caused Kupat Holim's doctors, led by Dr. Rami Ylshal, to go out on a strike to press their demands that a physician be cannot expect a logical conclusion given the crucial post. The doctors to be drawn." District Court order which is de appealed in the Supreme Court.) Turning specifically to the possibility of a renewal of a strike by the doctors, Mr. Yadlin said. who are they striking against anyway? Not against the Kupat Holim leadership. They are striking against their own children, uncles, aunts, brothers, sisters and parents who receive medical help. And how long do you think they can strike against themselves? Especially, when these doctors actually suffer mental torment from their own actions."

He railed against the schizophrenic approach of some of the country's leaders, who on the one hand preached a philosophy of going out on strike at the slightest strikers for doing what they had been taught to do.

"If the State wants to give the workers absolute freedom to do what they want, then the State should be prepared to bear the consequences, even if the consequences boomerang."

Mr. Yadlin noted that a "committee of experts" had been recently set up (its chairman is Prof. Moshe Prywes, President of the University of the Negev) to plan a complete reorganization of Kupat Holim's administration. He expected that the committee would submit its findings in February. (One of the foreign experts called in, Prof. Jerry Morris, head of the Department of Public Health at the London School of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene, has already advised the committee members to work towards one "integrated" national system, with no separation or distinction, as at present, between the work of the chimics, the hospitals and of the general preventive health service.)

ed this fact.

As for charging for medicines, Mr. Yadlin favours a fee which will be about 20 per cent of the value of the medicines themselves. Exact details of how the charge will be made are only in the planming state, but one thing is certain: "Everybody, without exception, will pay. Social welfare cases will also pay, but they will receive the money back through some central arrangement. If we exempt them from payment when they receive the medicine, there will be a long line of others demanding the same exemption. Every widow will demand free medicines — even though ahe might be working at a high-paying job and making more money than me."

He believed charging a fee would reduce the number of prescriptions written by the doctors under pressure. This in turn would lead to less cases of medicines being wasted or taken unnecessarily.

Question: "But the Histadrut has already defeated the proposal to charge for medicines?"

Answer: 'Tm going to fight for it again."

Mr. Yadin proposes that equipsuch as X-ray machines should be utilized "one and a half shifts a day, and not only one shift as at present." Today, an X-ray technician, after finishing his shift for Kupat Holim, goes to a private firm to work have to use the services of this company since we don't have enough staff."

"Why abouldn't this same technician work for us extra hours and get extra pay? Why should we have to pay an outside firm for the use of its equipment, and of our own staff, when our equipment stands idle?"

As for the introduction of the national health law, which will provide services through the existing six sick funds, Mr. Yadlin believes that Kupat Holim "will gain members, not lose them, but this, of course, is dependent on our breaking the bottleneck which exists in the clinics." Once this "bottleneck is broken," he believes there will be a steady influx from the other sick funds (Leumit, Maccabi, Merkazit, Amamit and Assaf), "so much so, that a few of these sick This will eliminate a great part of funds will just cease to exist."
